

EW ↓

CT
1/7/91

THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW JERSEY
RUTGERS

School of Communication, Information and Library Studies
Department of Library and Information Studies
4 Huntington Street • New Brunswick • New Jersey 08903 • 201/932-7917

20 December 1990

Professor Joshua Lederberg
Rockefeller University
1230 York Avenue
New York, NY 10021-6399

Dear Professor Lederberg:

Last year, when I sent you an offprint of my article on England's procurement of German science during World War II, I mentioned that there was a group of people who exchanged information about I.G. Farben's activities; among them I thought you might find some information about the German chemical warfare programs that are of interest to you.

I recently received the group's newsletter, which I am enclosing. I include also a circular soliciting new group members. I would encourage you to add your name; it is a world-wide network including scholars and scientists from quite varied fields. Obviously, quite a few are historians of chemistry.

①
yes.

Sincerely yours,

Pamela Richards
Pamela Spence Richards
Associate Professor

PS: In August I spent a delightful day in Aberdeen with Professor R.V. Jones, who is completely recovered from his three months in the hospital last spring.

2

① Thank you for thinking of me!

② Glad you've had the chance to meet him; and I'm pleased at news of his recovery.

1. B. - my current preoccupation is how to deter (and defend against) Iraqi use of C/B/W. Recent German provision of CW capability to Iraq is an extrapolation of "I.G. Farben". J.1